'MADE IN GERMANY'

Novel Plan for "More Sunlight" by Shoving Clock Ahead General in Europe

BEN FRANKLIN DISCOVERER

Credit for Suggestion Belongs to America's First Economist

CAN'T SLEEP LATE ANYHOW

There's Always That One Fly That Got In to Break Morning Nap

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 13.—Ever since the war in Europe the need of thrift in America has been impressed upon us. We have been told how Europe saves its money, how it conserves its natural resources and how it keeps the record of its expenses, in order that our extravagant instincts may be curbed by its example. Now, the latest innovation thrust upon us by the thrifty ones is the economizing of daylight during the summer months by setting all the clocks ahead by one hour.

"Made in Germany"

This plan, which bears the trade mark, "Made in Germany," has now been adopted by Holland, Switzerland, England and Canada, where it is alleged great saving has been effected in kerosene, gas and electric light. In reality, all Americans know that the idea originated with the first American economist, Benjamin Franklin, years ago, when it was embodied in a two-line jingle which has been sung by American school children ever since. According to Franklin, he was the first man to discover that the sun rose as early as 6 o'clock in the morning and diffused light as soon as it rose. In a letter he wrote to a Parisian journal he explained the phenomenon, which it is to be regretted was doubted by a prominent American astronomer, and claimed the honor of the discovery, although complaining bitterly that he supposed some one would endeavor to show that the thing had been known to the ancients.

It was then suggested in the letter that in order that people might have the benefit of this extra amount of newly discovered daylight, cannon, drums and bells should proclaim the rising of the sun every morning. There is no evidence, however, that the plan was ever accepted with any great enthusiasm by the colonists, who continued to sleep placidly through the early summer mornings and to retire at the accustomed hour.

Used in Many Cities

But changing the standard time of an entire nation so as to get the people up an hour earlier in the morning is something new. Cleveland has been getting up an hour earlier than the rest of the country for the past two years, and Detroit and several Canadian cities have recently followed suit, while it is reported New York is considering adopting the policy, but in Europe the changing of the clocks is provided by national law. As early as 1908, a daylight saving bill was introduced into the house of commons in England and created a tremendous furor, but failed of passage. Today, the clocks are moved up an hour on the third Sunday in April and back an hour on the third Sunday of September. The standard time of Greenwich remains the same for the purpose of astronomical computation and navigation.

As far as the extra daylight is concerned, there is no doubt but what such economy would prove a benefit. While many will miss the picturesque moonlight of the nights and all the interesting night noises of the frogs, katydids and crickets, the sunlight is much more healthful. Anyway, the last hour of sleep which is causing all the fuss is apt to be something of a weary pretence. In

M'COMBS SENDS OUT
BID TO PROGRESSIVES
TO COME INTO FOLD

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 13.—Democratic Chairman William F. McCombs today wired Bainbridge Colby of New York an invitation to join the democratic party. His action was based on Colby's repudiation of Roosevelt for whom he had made the nominating speech in the progressive convention at Chicago Saturday.

McCombs' action was the most striking development to date of the democratic leader's efforts to find a way to kidnap the 4,444,000 votes of the progressive party which they consider orphaned by Roosevelt's decision not to be their candidate, as outlined by the United Press.

The telegram read: "Bainbridge Colby, 23 Nassau Street, New York: I have read your statement. It appears that Colonel Roosevelt has attempted to send his former enthusiastic followers stumbling along to destruction. The progressive democracy cordially and sincerely offers them safety. (Signed) "WILLIAM F. M'COMBS, "Chairman Democratic National Committee."

Colby Hasn't Answered

NEW YORK, June 13.—Bainbridge Colby, whose aid William F. McCombs solicited in trying to swing the progressive voters to the democratic party, was too busy with personal affairs this afternoon to think of politics.

"Mr. Colby is engaged in a conference over the wire-tapping case," volunteered his secretary, "and is not thinking of politics."

BILLY WOLFE ANNOUNCES
HE'LL RUN FOR SENATE
ON WAY TO ST. LOUISBREAKS SILENCE
AT KENOSHA ON SPECIAL TRAIN

Local Attorney Has Long Been Considered Candidate But Has Refused to Confirm Rumors

KENOSHA, Wis., June 13.—William F. Wolfe of La Crosse today announced to the democrats aboard the special train going to the St. Louis convention, that he would make the race for United States senator on the democratic ticket.

This statement of the La Crosse man makes definite an impression that has prevailed for months, although Mr. Wolfe has up to the present studiously avoided giving confirmation or denial. To all inquiry on the subject he has answered by changing the subject, or saying that he had not made up his mind. That his announcement would be made during or shortly after his attendance at the convention has been predicted recently. It has been tacitly assumed by Wisconsin democrats that Mr. Wolfe would make the race, and plans were laid at the recent meeting of democrats in Milwaukee on that basis.

The announcement made by Mr. Wolfe was made at a gathering of 200 notable Wisconsin democrats on the Badger special train. Included in his companions on the trip to St. Louis are United States Senator Paul O. Husting, Postmaster Brown, Lake Geneva; Postmaster Gorman, Kenosha; C. P. Crosby, Rhinelander; R. R. Pfeiffer, Stevens Point; Sheriff Stahl, Kenosha; Paul A. Hemmy, United States District Attorney H. A. Sawyer, United States Marshall Randolph, J. J. Litza, Jr., Frank Grutza, V. J. Schoenecker, Jr., and Judge Karel, Milwaukee.

GENERAL FIELD HEADQUARTERS AMERICAN EXPEDITION, IN MEXICO, June 12, wireless to Columbus, N. M., June 13.—Three or more Mexicans were killed and several wounded by Captain Otto W. Rether's detachment of the "Fighting Thirtieth" cavalry, who, after a forced march, overtook and routed a remnant of Villista General Cervantes' band early yesterday. The Americans suffered no casualties.

Attempted Ambush

The Mexicans attempted to ambush the Americans in a heavily wooded canyon, twenty miles northeast of Santa Clara, but the cavalrymen dismounted and surprised the bandits on the flank.

The Villistas kept up a heavy rifle fire for a few minutes, but broke and fled when the Americans rushed.

TOM TAGGART IS FEARFUL OF THE
KIDNAPING PLAN

Democratic Leader Hushes the Boys Who Want to Gather In the Bull Moose

WOULD GET PLATFORM FIRST

Afraid the Radicals Might Prove Hard to Handle if Admitted to Membership

M'COMBS KEEPS UP AGITATION

Finds Many Supporters Who Are Willing to Give Progressives a Voice in Platform-making

BY LOWELL MELLETT

(United Press Staff Correspondent.) ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 13.—Plans for kidnapping the progressive party's four million "fatherless" voters, under full headway yesterday, showed signs of difficulty today. Cautious old line democratic leaders, headed by Senator Taggart, succeeded in holding up the quick move planned by Chairman McCombs and others to bring the leaders of the progressive convention from Chicago to St. Louis immediately. The matter was too important for instant decision, Taggart said, and won several others to his view that the platform should be drafted before the progressives were invited.

Want Moose Advice

Homer S. Cummings, the national committee's choice for national chairman, joined Chairman McCombs in advocacy of immediate, definite action, as opposed to delay and only a general invitation. The last named course would provide only for certain platform declarations intended to be attractive to progressives. It would not include the granting of a hearing to progressive leaders.

Opposition to the plan has grown out of the fear that it would bring a big radical element into the party that would be hard to handle, so the would-be kidnapers charged today. They say the fear is unfounded. "If the democratic party organization is to be more important than the party membership," said one of the leaders, "then we have not anything to offer the progressives, that's true. That is why they left the republican party and that is why their new party has been wrecked. If we're going to invite them in, let's not do it under false pretenses. Let's bring them in on a real understanding of what we propose to do. The first step in that direction would be to have as many of them as possible here while we work out our own platform and program."

Delegates Come Slowly

The bulk of the delegates were expected to arrive today. Lobbies of the Jefferson and Planters hotels are showing more of the convention spirit—but so far exactly one band has blared its way about downtown and there hasn't been a sign of a cheer.

It appeared likely today that re-nomination of Thomas R. Marshall for vice president might not be unanimous. Roger Sullivan of Illinois and Governor Major of Missouri, both have shouters boosting them for the second place berth. Friends of Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois indignantly declared today that Roger Sullivan's name was presented as a candidate for the vice presidential nomination, that of the man who made the whisker famous in politics would also go before the delegates.

BARBER GASHED
WHEN CAR WINDOW
FALLS ON HEAD

W. E. Barber of this city, state conservation commissioner, is at his desk in Madison today with a big bandage on his head, memento of an accident which occurred on a train which was carrying him back to the capital last night after a week-end spent with his family in La Crosse. Underneath the bandage is a six-inch gash which goes to the bone.

The accident occurred just after the train passed through a tunnel this side of Elroy. The brakeman was re-opening transoms in the car. He jerked one of the transoms loose from its hinges, and it fell upon the conservation commissioner's head.

A doctor met the train at Elroy and dressed the wound.

AND BOOM HUGHES

Suggestion Made by James Thompson Gets Enthusiastic Endorsement

YERLY TO FRAME PROGRAM

County Chairman to Call Meeting Soon to Prepare Plans for Big Gathering

ALL FACTIONS TO BE THERE

Progressives, Conservatives and Bull Moose to Deliver Addresses for the Justice

A monster get-together meeting of La Crosse county republicans, the purpose of which will be to perfect an organization to work ceaselessly and tirelessly for the election of Charles Evans Hughes, will be held in La Crosse soon.

The "love feast" was suggested by Delegate-at-large James Thompson to "Pete" J. Yerly, chairman of the republican county committee and the latter official is enthusiastic over the proposal.

"I will call a meeting of the necessary sub-committees of the county organization," said Mr. Yerly today, "and at that time plans will be perfected for the gathering."

While the details have not been arranged it is the tentative plan to hold a smoker, possibly at the Hotel Stoddard, have a few speeches by prominent republicans and a general discussion of the national situation in this district.

On the speaking program will be representative men from both the progressive and conservative ranks and it will be the purpose of the gathering to publicly establish the fact that on the presidential question all Wisconsin republicans—progressive, conservative or Bull Moose—will be united for Justice Hughes.

Chairman Yerly this afternoon announced that he had called a meeting of the county republican executive and finance committees to lay plans for the smoker. The meeting will be held tomorrow evening in the supervisors' room at the court house. The hour set is 7:30. All interested persons are invited to attend, Mr. Yerly said.

MARIAN THREATENED
SUICIDE DECLARES
JOSEPHINE DAVIS

COURT ROOM, WAUKEGAN, ILL., June 13.—That Marian Lambert threatened to kill herself a few days before she was found dead in Helms woods was the bombshell testimony that Josephine Davis, Marian's closest chum, sprang in the trial of Will Orpet for Marian's murder this afternoon.

The suicide threat, Josephine said, was made on Sunday, February 6, at Marian's birthday party, four days before her body was found.

The testimony came on cross-examination by the defense after the state, which had hoped Josephine would be its principal witness, succeeded in drawing from her answers that only strengthened the suicide theory.

"Marian was frequently depressed and melancholy when alone with me," said Josephine. "But when in company with others she was abnormally gay."

"On the Sunday afternoon of her eighteenth birthday party, she had a crying spell. We all seemed happy but Marian. She came to me and said: 'Jo, Oh, Jo, I can't be happy, knowing my present condition.'"

"Then she told me she intended to kill herself if Orpet married Celesta Youker."

"I kidded her about the threat, and asked her if she wanted me to tell her parents about her relations with Orpet after she was dead."

"Don't tell my father and mother," she answered. "It would only start a lot of gossip."

"I'll Fix Him"

"Under cross-examination Josephine said: 'Marian made this remark to me after she had learned from Dorothy Mason that Celesta Youker was engaged to be married.'"

"Josephine, I wonder if there is any truth to the report which Dorothy Mason told us about the engagement. If Will is engaged to marry Celesta Youker, I'll fix him."

Asked by Josephine the meaning of the threat "I'll fix him," Miss Davis testified that Marian replied: "Oh, never mind, you'll find out."

Petrograd Reports Austrians Demoralized by Great Offensive of Russians

GREAT FORCES ARE ENGAGED

British Hopeful Roumania May Join Allies as the Slavs Invade Bukovina

PETROGRAD, June 13.—Hurting westward with seeming superhuman vigor, the Russian armies of General Brussiloff are now hammering their way to Lemberg, the Galician capital, in giant strides. The Russian war office reports defenders are rolling back before them. It is now estimated that more than one-third of the men in the Austrian armies on the east front have been killed, wounded or taken prisoners since the great offensive started June 4.

One thousand more Austrians have been taken prisoners and their compatriots are retreating rapidly along the entire front, according to an official announcement by the Petrograd war office tonight.

Approximately 120,000 men and officers have been imprisoned up to date, Petrograd claims. Conservative critics estimate a total of 360,000 Austrians have been put out of the fighting since June 4. The Austrian army on the east front had been variously estimated at from 700,000 to 1,000,000 men.

The new Russian line now makes a deep U into the region toward Kovel. Every mile here is a double gain. It drives the Austrians back and at the same time makes the positions of the Germans on the line toward Riga less tenable.

Near Czernowitz

In the south, the armies of the czar are knocking at the gates of Czernowitz, and the rich country beyond. Unofficial reports are that Czernowitz has already been taken. This has not been confirmed.

Roumania to Allies? LONDON, June 13.—The prospect of Roumania joining the allies in the war against the central powers is growing daily with the advance of the Russian armies into Bukovina, according to reports in diplomatic circles here.

Say Russ Lose Heavily BERLIN, via Sayville Wireless, June 13.—Reporting minor victories at several points in the fight to stop the final rush of the offensive, the Austrian war office report received here today declares Russian losses "correspond to the reckless use of masses made by the Russians."

"On the height east of Wisniowzyk Russian attacks were broken down by Austro-Hungarian artillery fire," said the statement, covering yesterday's fighting.

FAMOUS AVIATOR
TO FLY HERE IN
TROTTER MEET

Charles F. Niles, bird man who thrilled thousands of people at the Interstate fair here three years ago, and who has since won the name of "Loop-the-loop Niles," will be an attraction during a two-day racing meet to be held on the fair grounds here July 13 and 14. Announcement of the racing meeting was made today. It will be held under the auspices of the La Crosse Trotting association recently organized.

Officers of the association are J. A. Elliott, president; N. Nustad, vice-president; Al Cook, treasurer, and F. T. Maine, secretary.

Niles, who recently made fourteen successive loops in Japan, and who was a star attraction at the San Francisco exposition, will perform above the fair grounds with his aeroplane on both days of the racing meet. Aside from his volplaning, altitude flying and hair-raising tricks, Niles will daily loop-the-loop.

Mr. Cook, treasurer of the trotting association, visited racing horse owners at the Hamline, Minneapolis, meet recently, and secured promises that several of the fastest horses in the Northwest will take part in the La Crosse event.

Decision Prevents Closing of Library in Near Future Say the Trustees

City's $6,000 Aid Will Be Paid as Soon as Legal Formalities Are Finished Says Mayor

LIBRARY CONTROL NOT MATERIAL

Court Holds That Institution Is as Much a Public Library as if Trustees Were Elected

In a decision handed down this morning, the supreme court of Wisconsin holds that the $6,000 annual appropriation of the city for the support and maintenance of the La Crosse public library is legal and that the money should be paid to the trustees.

The court opened the judgment of the circuit court here reversed, and remanded the case back to Judge Higbee with directions to grant the writ prayed for by the petitioners, the library board. The trustees originally asked a peremptory injunction ordering the city officials to pay the appropriation passed last winter.

The case was originally tried in the local circuit court, Judge E. C. Higbee holding that the appropriation was illegal. Today's decision reverses that of Judge Higbee.

The decision today prevents the closing to the library, a move that was not at all impossible had the court failed to allow the appropriations.

The fact that library trustees, who handle the money appropriated by the city, are not appointed by the council is not important, holds the court, in view of the fact that the funds appropriated are expended for the benefit of all of the people.

According to Cameron L. Baldwin, of the law firm of Bosshard & Baldwin, attorneys for the library board, the decision of the court establishes the fact that appropriations made for public purposes—whether or not it is handled by private organizations—are legal.

This covers the situation of beekeepers', livestock growers' and other organizations, dependent upon the state for a part of their support, which it was said were endangered by the circuit court decision in the library case.

City officials, library trustees, in fact La Crosse people in general, were jubilant over the decision.

"I am delighted that the supreme court has O. K.'d the appropriation," said George W. Burton, one of the library trustees, this morning. "We could hardly have continued without the money from the city. The appropriation of $6,000, which was held up by this litigation, was to have been paid on February 1. Without it but a few months, we were already considering the advisability of borrowing funds with which to continue the work of the institution."

Mayor A. A. Bentley is pleased. "Everyone wanted to see the library get the money," said His Honor. "However, it had so often been threatened that suits might follow alleged illegal appropriations that it was our only course—to fight it out in the courts and settle it once and for all."

Mr. Bentley said today that he believed many of the other alleged illegal payments in the conduct of the city's business would be affected by the decision and that where legal proceedings had been threatened the complainants would withdraw in view of the court's ruling on the library matter.

To Pay at Once Mr. Bentley also said that the $6,000 would undoubtedly be turned over to the library trustees immediately upon receipt of the official notice of the supreme court's decision. The opinion in the case was written

ARTIFICIAL BLOOD
Blood infusion will no longer require the sacrifice of blood from one person to save the life of another if an invention of a New York physician meets the claims. A new York physician has invented a formula for artificial blood which closely approximates the characteristics of real blood. It is composed chiefly of gelatin solution, sodium chloride and distilled water. The danger from hemorrhage is due not so much to the loss of the actual corpuscles in the blood as to the loss of volume. A number of experiments with this new formula indicate that it will serve as a substitute for human blood, at least in many cases.

THEY MISS THE POINT

In their explanation of that recent unfortunate occurrence at the normal school the young men involved place their refusal to rise during the national air on the ground that they uphold the principles of Internationalism. They profess a world patriotism which transcends fealty to any single nation.

That explanation in a measure begs the question, at least as regards the incident at the normal school. The principles stated are only indirectly involved, and the explanation indicates that the young men, in zeal for their cause, missed the correlation and entire compatibility of national and international patriotism.

The error in their reasoning can be concretely illustrated by constructing an analogy of family life. Because one has a high regard for the family as a whole, he does not refuse expression of his particular regard for an individual member. That one loves his parents does not imply that he hates his uncles or his cousins.

The young men, in their public explanation of the incident, recognize this by declaring their loyalty to American ideals. Their action, they say, was a protest against the injection of militarism into the structure of American patriotism. Granting, for the sake of argument, that there was a jingo spirit at the school's mock convention, it may still be questioned that the young men have cleared their skirts. One does not reform an institution by leaving it. Disrespect does not make American ideals more respectable. The man of lofty principles who deserts because he is out of sympathy leaves affairs to those against whom he is opposed. He has neglected his opportunity, and in satisfying his spirit of protest has nullified his principles.

Accepting the young men's statement that they are truly patriotic, to America and to the world, one is forced to the belief that they have failed of expressing either.

HONORING MUSCLE

We learn from the Yale Alumni Weekly that of the forty-fivefortunates from the junior class who were "tapped" on May 18 for Yale's three famous secret societies, thirty-five, or seven-ninths, have athletic records.
As the greatest honor that can come to a Yale undergraduate is considered to be an election to "Bones,"
"Keys" or "Wolf's Head," it follows that the athletic ideal is still paramount at New Haven.

And yet the common sense of mankind never has rated and probably never will rate mere athletic aptitude very highly compared with other human values.—

VERSE and REVERSE

Commencement Time
I remember, I remember, the day
that I quit school.

I got a nice diploma for minding every rule.

I was the wisest mortal who ever left the place.

There was no person like me in all the human race.

I had old Homer faded and Solomon
as well.

The real reach of my knowledge would take too long to tell.

And I was downright sorry; it really was a shame.

That I should have to go out and teach the world its game.

For I was tender-hearted and could not bear to see

The looks of jealous anger when people heard of me.

The teacher, to assure me, was kind enough to say

The other folks would manage to get along some way.

I couldn't quite believe him. You see that was before

I'd taken my first toddle outside the college door.

Then I set forth to conquer the poor old easy world.

With wind and weather charming and every sail unfurled.

'Twas several long years ago, how many, I forget.

But still I don't mind owning the world ain't conquered yet.

I remember, I remember, the day
that I quit school;

Since then I have been learning how not to be a fool.

LA CROSSE MEN SEE REPUBLICAN VICTORY IN FALL

Whoever secures a republican nomination in Wisconsin this fall
will be elected.

This was sentiment expressed this morning by James Thompson, La Follette delegate to the recent republican national convention, and George H. Gordon, a strong Phillip man and one of the alternates to the same convention.

"The convention," said Mr. Gordon this morning, "did much to engender a better feeling between the factions of the republican party in Wisconsin and I am sure that whoever may be the republican nominee for any office in this state—La Follette or so-called conservative—he will be elected."

That Hughes is a progressive, a big man and that he represents true Americanism, is the opinion of Mr.
Thompson.

"I am sure that his nomination will prove satisfactory to the rank and file in this state," said Mr.
Thompson, "and I have no doubt but that he will be the man to defeat Wil-tions, it was evident that the feeling between the two is much better than it has been for years.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 13.—Support of northwest states for Governor E. W. Major of Missouri for the vice presidential nomination was promised Monday as the Washington delegation arrived. Judge Battle of Seattle, chairman, said the two Dakotas probably will join Washington in aiding the Missourian.

"Say, Reed," said Higgins, as he met a friend, "do you know why you are like a donkey?"

"Like a donkey?" echoed Reed.
thoughtfully. "No, I don't."

"Because your better half is stubbornness itself," said Higgins.

"That's not bad," said Reed. "I'll have to try that on my wife when I get home tonight."

Accordingly, when they were at dinner, Reed asked:

"Annie, do you know why I am so much like a donkey?"

He waited a moment, expecting Mrs. Reed would give it up. But, on the contrary, she gazed at him somewhat commiseratingly as she replied:
"I suppose because you were born
so."

Japped English

A recent writer in a Tokio journal reports the struggles of Japanese writers to translate English idioms into their own tongue. We cite several of these: "We put our heads together" (We collided). "He could not find it for the life of him" (He is not discover it till his death). "He is a great loss to his country" (He is a great calamity to his country). "He hung his head for shame" (He committed suicide by strangulation).
"He takes things easily" (He is a deft thief). "She sat over a cup of tea" (She sat upon a teacup). "I shudder at the bare idea" (I shudder to think that the man is naked). "The bare idea" is evidently translated into "the idea of bareness." "Spare me five minutes" (Spare my life—only for five minutes).

And Her Name—

It was at an evening party and Dodge asked Keller:

"Who is that impressive looking woman over there?"

"That's Mrs. Moore," was the reply. "She's a remarkably strong minded woman. It's said she commands a large salary."

"Indeed," said Dodge, reflectively as he looked at the woman with interest. "How does she earn it?"

"She don't earn it," said Keller.
"Her husband earns it, and she commands it."

The Two Dimensions

The temporary pulpit orator had preached a very long sermon. Even he realized that he had exceeded the modern limit of sermons, and he said to the gentleman to whose home he went for Sunday dinner:

"I hope I did not worry you by the length of my sermon."

"Not at all," said the gentleman.
"nor by its depth."

Nothing

The teacher had given the boys
this subject for composition:

"What I would do if I suddenly came into possession of $10,000."

One little fellow, after chewing his penholder for some time, returned a blank sheet.

"That," replied the precocious
youth, "is what I'd do if I had $10,- 000."

BARBADOS

The people of Barbados are Britishers, and proud of it. These darkskinned inhabitants of a little Caribbean island talk more about their loyalty to the crown than does the Englishman himself, perhaps because their race is more given to discussing its inmost sentiments. They call their island by the family nickname of "Little England."

Barbados is not much like England except in British spirit, and in density of population. It claims the distinction of being one of the most thickly settled lands on the face of the earth. About twelve hundred Bar-badians manage to live in cheerful amity on each square mile of the island's surface. For the rest, England is useful for purposes of contrast rather than comparison.

For Barbados is a sort of comic-opera Arcadia, a richly colorful and exotic land, with lush fields of cane, tropic birds and butterflies, exceedingly un-English combinations of pink-walled houses, sapphire sea, green forests and white roads. The typical Barbadian landscape looks as though it had been lifted bodily from some theatrical back-drop.

The local means of transportation might have been taken from the vaudeville stage. There is a little local street car that runs about on two wheels at a nerve-racking distance from the tails of the two mules that pull it. The tourist sits therein with ample time to view the scenery and collects what seems to be the local equivalent for rain checks. Every time he pays his fare or changes from one of the toy cars to another the conductor hands him a large paper slip. The stranger accepts them until he is bowed beneath the burden; the initiated probably use them for kindling.

The local railroad puffing along its narrow-gauge track is worthy of a book in itself. All the slow-train stories that have ever been told in the United States pale into insignificance beside the ones hung about this Barbados railway, where the time of the run is said to depend on the number of passengers hauled.
But to judge Barbados by its transportation facilities is a bad mistake.
The island does not need rapid transit; there is no room for it with only fourteen miles from the ocean to the ocean. Barbados as a whole is rather up to date.

CHAPTER XV

The Guardian of the Monster

We hurried down the hot plank wharf to the new little cabin boat, and I quite upset a languid young young town dandy who was wiping the hatchway hand-rails. Clell had muttered rebelliously; he was furiously feeling he had been tricked some way or other.

"You sent for her—and never told me!" he said. "That was not right.
And what did you tell her?"

"Nothing. I merely wished Mary to see—well as a stockholder in this corporation, with all her precious money involved—I thought she had a right to know. Such a mixed affair as we have—business and—er—love, and all that kind of thing. I thought we needed expert advice."

He glared at me—he didn't know how to meet her.

Mary, gray-eyed, calm and sufficient standing in the doorway, was laughing with old friendliness. Clell stammered a rather casual greeting
as he took her hand; he looked at me again as if he doubted my motives.
And then he put on a new stern air;
and I saw at once a reaction in her.
Quite amazement, almost unbelief,
in fact, that her young man had gone so far from her. He had a hardy and rugged initiative, without trace of resentment, now, but mere distant and lofty friendliness. I, too, was astonished; he had the "mental drop" on her as Virgil said afterward.

"Found her in the company's office," the latter explained. "I went in there clean discouraged—it was before I'd heard of the case. And there was Mary talking to young Kenner, askin' how she could get out to our wilderness with the big news she'd just learned. And then she turned on me and said, quite as if she'd explicated me: 'Virgil, we won the case!' I was clean foolish for a moment—yes, seh—winnin'
that case, and Mary tellin' it to me first!"

The attorneys had just got their wires," Mary explained, "and I had reached New Orleans that morning.
Virgil," she looked at the gaunt Texan, "I never saw him turn pale before."

"Yes, seh, reckon I did. Only nobody knows—well, all this—" He raised his hand solemnly to the silence, the high white heat of sky and marsh and water. "They told me eight years ago I couldn't do it—and I said I could, and made 'em trust me. I fought it here and in Chicago and New York, and things got worse year by year. Then this lawsuit broke, and I had to fight that, too; and find the money and keep the machines pushin' on and the men at the job. If I told you all how many times I failed you'd not believe." He smiled patiently.
"All right, the peak of the load is shifted. Yeh see the money's comin' now—and the machines and men —started before I left N'Awlins.
Mary, I'm glad you didn't come sooner—it would have been fightin'
bad to watch us here—losin' losin',
day by day."

"I know," she answered, "Doctor Dick kept writing me."

Clell and Virgil both looked at me. I had been traitor all around.
Clell was still nursing his hurt pride.
And I wondered what else? Then,
in a moment, Mary, with her quick way of sensing things, spoke what we each were thinking.

"And the girl and her island?"

What about her?"

We were still. One man of us had a great secret love that was a pathos in his victory; and another had a romantic infatuation that was pity and chivalry combined; and I?

Well, I had the memory of the night
she saved our lives in the fire-filled canal, and of the time she hit me with the duck. We were still—it hurts us all.

"She loses everything, I suppose,"
Mary went on.

"Yes," muttered Clell, "that's the abominable thing about it."

"I tried to make her see," Virgil said gently. "I got no call to fight a woman—I tried to explain that years ago. I tried to carry her side of the load, too. But the job could not wait for any one. You see, I had to think of folks up home—wid-da women. I knew, and people that had brought our stock. Bought company stock on my word—when they wouldn't take the company's. So I had to win—only Laure couldn't see.
She never will see."

The dogged hopelessness in him belied his smile.

"Well," muttered Clell again.
"You'll have to tell her she's lost.
I couldn't have the face for that!"

Mary looked keenly at him. I noticed now that with all her grooming, that clear look of the north that spoke her strength and poise, she seemed tired a bit, with a wistful-ness, as if her coming had not been all that she had dreamed. Her look upon Clell with her old level coolness and common sense became confused, I thought; he had a reserve, a sureness, a man's rough edge
about him now that was new to her, and perhaps startling. And he took her presence, after his first surprise, with imperturbable complacence; he was no longer the appealing lover of a self-satisfied and successful city woman who could stipulate her own conditions to him. She looked at

It was while she was attending

HUGHES CRAVED CHANCE TO COVER A CONVENTION

NEW YORK, June 13.—The New York Post yesterday afternoon published correspondence in which John P. Gavitt, its managing editor, endeavored to employ Justice Hughes to report the national conventions. Hughes replied as follows: "Dear Gavitt: 'I have received your letter of May eighteenth. I cannot tell you how deeply touched I am by your kind offer. At last my secret ambition is laid bare. For many weary years I have longed to be a newspaper correspondent and say a few things. But my talent for up to date, virile, philosophical, prophetic, cinematographical correspondence has been unrecognized, and one exigency after another has compelled me to make other arrangements. I am now under contract for work, relatively unimportant, which, however, will detain me here during the time the convention is held. I put aside my longing to see a convention; that is very great, but it is as nothing as compared to my wish to write one up and to show the best of newspapers how it may be improved.' "Faithfully, (Signed) "CHARLES E. HUGHES."

ALLEN FOR HUGHES
ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 13.—Henry Allen, chief moderator at the progressive convention in Chicago yesterday declared for Justice Hughes and said he expected the progressives in the northern and central states to follow suit. Allen said he believed Colonel Roosevelt would take an active part in the Hughes campaign.

DAYLIGHT THRIFT IN SUMMER WAS "MADE IN GERMANY"

the suburbs the chickens have long since had their own clock system with no consideration for the established sleeping customs of the country, and in the city the clatter of the milk bottles on the 6 o'clock delivery is conducive to insomnia. There is always the fearful awakening of the 6-months-old infant next door, the man who plays the cornet across the street and the annoying attentions of the one fly that managed to prevent that last hour's sleep in the morning.

Hard on Milkman
If one got up an hour earlier, he might avoid the chickens and the awakening infant, but here would always be the milk bottles, the cornet and the fly that were still earlier. Besides working a hardship on the electric light and gas companies, it would probably be distasteful to the milkman who are already ahead of the daylight, to the farmer who must beat the opening of the market and to the grocers and restaurant keepers whose business begins before most people get up in the morning.

However, it is the psychology of the thing which is the most interesting issue. By setting the clock an hour ahead it is hoped to convince us that it is 7 o'clock when it is really only 6. It might seem to some people that the changing of the clock were a trifle unnecessary, since it is perfectly possible to get up at 6 o'clock whether the clock says it is 6 or 7, but the daylight savers are counting upon the power of suggestion. One man has suggested that the same idea be carried out with regard to the thermometer; namely, that in the summer it be forced down a few degrees and in the winter up a few degrees, thus convincing people that it was cooler or warmer than it actually was. Many American cities start the day an hour earlier in the summer, but the practice is not universal which, of course, will be the case if a law is passed providing changing the time.

Bother to Railroads
The only people seriously inconvenienced by the daylight saving plan are the telegraph and railroad companies. The railroads would have some confusion with trains on the line at the moment the clock was changed; and the telegraph companies are apt to become a trifle confused at first in their time schedules.

Standard time around the world has always produced many curious phenomena, such as the receipt of the news of the empress of China's death in New York almost a day before it happened. A telegram sent from Greenwich at noon will arrive in New York at 7 o'clock in the morning, five hours before it was sent, providing, of course, the transmission be instantaneous. San Francisco, which is much further west, would receive it four hours earlier. On the other hand, a cablegram sent from Greenwich to India, although instantly communicated, would arrive several hours later. Thus in keeping the records of all telegrams sent, the companies must bear in mind the local changes in time of the various countries, in addition to the fluctuations in world standard time.

Hard to Change
To tamper with the time standard has always been considered by the mass of the people an extremely daring and dangerous thing to do. Changes in the calendar in the past have only been accomplished after much argument, persuasion and some bloodshed, and the standard time adjustment is always regarded with a certain steadfast attachment and awe. It was many years before we had standard time in America.

The system in vogue in ancient Greece and Rome was to have twelve hours between sunset and sunrise, whether it was winter or summer. The ancient water-clocks were merely constructed so as to vary the by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

ten by Justice Seabury. The opinion says:

"As shown by the instant case the La Crosse Public Library renders all the service to the people of La Crosse that any library established by the city under the statutes could render, and the only point wherein the administration of its corporate affairs differs from one established by the city is that six of its seven trustees are selected by the corporate trustees instead of by the city council, and the city mayor is ex officio made the seventh member. True, the expenditure of the money raised and the reports thereof to the common council are not controlled by the statutory regulations which apply to trustees of libraries established by cities. However, the trustees of this library are in law required to devote the funds furnished them by the city for its support in all respects as provided and appropriated for the benefit of all the people of the city as if they were selected by the common council. Should any delinquency occur in the faithful discharge of their public duty they would in equity be responsible in the same measure as the trustees of libraries established by cities. It is also obvious should any occasion arise for complaint in any respect that the people of the city would undoubtedly enforce their right of refusal to grant further support thereafter."

MRS. J. M. PADESKY CALLED BY DEATH

Mrs. Elizabeth Padesky, wife of John M. Padesky, 1227 South Third street, died at her home at 1:30 this morning following a long illness of Bright's disease and heart trouble. Mrs. Padesky was improving until last Friday, when she learned of the death of George Myers, of Kenosha, Wis., husband of Mrs. Padesky's sister. A relapse followed.

Mrs. Padesky was a prominent member of St. Wenceslaus Catholic church. Funeral services will be held at 8:30 Thursday morning from the residence, and at 9 o'clock from the church. Rev. Xavier Till, pastor will officiate. Interment will be made at the Catholic cemetery.

ing machine" rather than a "regular fellow."

Gifts Pour in
Slipping into the crush of persons who throng headquarters today in the strenuous efforts to get good seats on the band wagon, was a messenger boy who brought the candidate forty-eight four-leaf clovers—the gift of William C. Douglas of Delhi N. Y., where Hughes once taught school, and John J. Waters of Mechanicsville. It was in the region of Mechanicsville that Hughes in his more sportive days pursued the festive squirrel.

Another gift was the cane carried by John C. Fremont, the first republican presidential candidate.

A sub-committee of the national committee is to meet in a few days to discuss campaign details. Plans for the major offensive of Hughes into the enemy's country will probably be made today when W. Murray Crane, one of the republican "big three," rambled into Hughes' red tapestryed receiving room for a "little talk."

Crane is "Pussyfooting"
Whether Murray will be accompanied by the powers was not made known today. Just what Crane has in mind in the way of campaign is not known. He is still pursuing the tactics of the Chicago convention—working quietly—Roosevelt calls it "pussyfooting."

In a telegram received today by Hughes from Oscar S. Strauss, progressive and close friend of Roosevelt, Strauss called on the progressives to support Hughes, and pledged his personal support.

Mrs. Charles Beard and Miss Lucy Burns, representatives of the Women's party, tried in vain today to get from Hughes a precise statement on his stand on suffrage. He finally sent word that he would outline his position on it fully in the speech he will make when officially notified of his nomination.

Several men friendly to Elihu Root dropped in on Hughes today on "purely personal calls." Oscar S. Strauss who this morning telegraphed support, was a visitor. With William Loeb it is understood, he may become one of the mediators between Hughes and T. R.

AMERICAN DUTY TO BE PREPARED SAYS PRESIDENT

World to Recognize That U. S. Means What She Says
Wilson Tells West Pointers

WEST POINT, N. Y., June 13.—"The world is going to know that when America speaks she means what she says," President Wilson told the military academy graduating class today. A moment before he had said, "Undoubtedly, gentlemen, this is the duty of American—to be prepared."

President Wilson promised in behalf of the United States to uphold the Monroe doctrine. He promised, too, what he did not promise when he made the recent peace league speech, that when the time comes, America will be ready to join the other nations to see that "that kind of justice prevails everywhere that we believe in."

To be military does not mean militaristic, the president said. He asked the West Point men not to forget that they are citizens first.

Mentioning the "small number" who loved their countries more than the country of their adoption, he said: "Nobody who doesn't put America first can consort with us."

ed them. The bandits were prevented from reaching their horses and supplies, escaping into the woods and rocky crevices and leaving twenty-four horses, some rifles and several thousand rounds of small arms ammunition in the hands of Rether's command.

There were about twenty men on each side in the fight.

Concern Grows
WASHINGTON, June 13.—Additional consular reports from Mexico today, administration officials admitted, gave cause for further concern. Reports from the Laredo district especially were very disquieting. It is to this section the reinforcements ordered to the border yesterday will be sent.

Officials today were inclined to the belief that the rapid spread of feeling among the natives against continued stay of the punitive expedition beyond the border is due to a systematic propaganda of enemies of the de facto government.

Diaz Balk of Propaganda
Consuls reported mass meetings in many towns. Some army officials claimed to see in this organized propaganda the hand of Felix Diaz and his backers with perhaps aid from remnants of the old cientifico party.

War department officials insisted today that no call for additional militia will be made unless the situation develops alarming conditions.

It was hinted such a move if taken at all certainly would not come until the return of Secretary Baker from St. Louis.

Carranza Calls Elections
MEXICO CITY, June 13.—Gen. Carranza, first chief of the Mexican republic, today took steps toward establishment of civil government throughout Mexico when he issued a decree calling municipal elections on the first Sunday in September. The officials chosen will take office October 1 and will immediately establish civil government.

FEW TO BUY AT TAX SALE: CUT INTEREST CAUSE

But little interest was manifested by local speculators in today's county and city tax sales.

The reduction of the interest from fifteen to ten per cent—made by the last legislature—is the reason.

THERE'S $80,000 TO BUILD PHYSICAL EDUCATION SCHOOL

The supreme court today denied the writ of injunction asked for restraining the erection of a physical education building at the La Crosse normal school to cost upwards of $80,000. Frank L. Gilbert, special counsel for Governor Philipp, contended that about $71,000 was available. The friends of the La Crosse normal school contended a much larger amount.

The case arose when the regents were informed that money borrowed from the building fund to finish the normal athletic field had decreased the available appropriation and could not be replaced. The court's decision is that the money was borrowed without legal warrant, and that therefore the building fund is intact. The decision gives the normal school more than $80,000 with which to erect the new building.

The money borrowed from the building fund was used in order not to stop work on the athletic field pending the availability of the school's maintenance fund this year. Justice Lindsey, in the opinion of the court said:

"If the loan of $9,465.17 from the building fund created by section 406-A, sub-division 2, was not authorized, then in contemplation of law the money is still in that fund and the sum of $26,360 should be increased by $9,465.17, making $35,825.17, which, added to the $45,000 in the fund created by section 172-54, sub-division 37, makes a total of $80,835.17 in the building fund available for the construction of the building. We have not been referred to and have been unable to find any authority, statutory or otherwise, for the attempted borrowing of the $9,465.17 from the building fund for the purpose of improving the athletic field. On the contrary, section 172-131 statutes of 1915, forbids the forestalling of appropriations for the diversion of funds. The board of regents having no authority to borrow from the building fund, the money was taken therefrom without legal warrant. When so taken the fund is not depleted. In contemplation of law the money is still in the fund for all legitimate purposes thereof. It follows that there is a sufficient fund on hand to construct a building and no injunction should issue. Judgment is reversed and the call remanded for a new trial."

ODD PLOT ENLIVEN "SUDDEN RICHES"

"Sudden Riches," the World film production featuring Robert Warwick, deals with the efforts of a young man and his wife to wade through a large inheritance left them by their uncle, out of spite because the young man's father had outwitted him when the two were courting the same girl. His plan was to ruin the little family by giving them so much money, which he very nearly succeeded in doing. "Sudden Riches" will be the feature shown on the screen at the Bijou theater on Wednesday this week.

GOVERNOR WILL NOT TELL WHY HE WANTS TO BE VICE-PRESIDENT

BY GEORGE MARTIN

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 13.—Having noted the lithographs, the reporter called today to ask Governor Major—Governor Elliott W. Major, of Missouri—just why he wants to be vice president of the United States.

Search for an answer to that question at the governor's headquarters was a long and interesting quest, but the upshot of it all is that the governor declines to say and his campaign managers don't know.

A surprisingly long, slender personage at all times, the governor today seemed unusually high in body, spirits, collar, hopes and silk hat.

But he seemed a bit stunned by the question. He summoned Judge Graves, a very ample and amiable old gentleman with a large, mellow voice, who was walking around the room behind his stomach. He, too, seemed surprised.

Meantime a very large young man, who looked as though he might be the judge's son, or a couple of them, quietly led the governor out.

The judge lowered himself upon a crushed and bewildered chair, peered searchingly at the reporter over his glasses and hauled out a long typewritten statement, which began, "The democracy of Missouri feels—," and continued through twenty-seven paragraphs and a postscript to describe its feelings.

At this point the governor came back. He had returned to say that he felt he could not, with dignity, state his reasons, if any, for wanting to be vice president of the United States. It would not, as the governor expressed it, be "etiquette." In hastening away again, however, he remarked that perhaps the judge could tell.

But the judge remarked that he had never given the matter a thought.

HOW TO REDUCE YOUR WEIGHT

A Simple, Safe, Reliable Way

People who are over-burdened with superfluous fat, know only too well the discomfort and ridicule that over-stout people have to bear.

If you are carrying around five or ten pounds of unhealthy fat you are unnecessarily weakening your vital organs and are carrying a burden which destroys the beauty of your figure.

There is no need of anyone suffering from superfluous fat. If you want to reduce your weight in a simple, safe and reliable way, without starvation diet or tiresome exercise, here is a test worth trying. Spend as much time as you can in the open air, breathe deeply and get from City Book and Drug store, 500 Main St., Columbian Pharmacy, 123 South Fourth St., a box of oil of korein capsules; take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself once a week so as to know just how fast you are losing weight and don't leave off the treatment or even skip a single dose until you are down to normal.

Oil of korein is absolutely harmless, is pleasant to take, and helps digestion. Even a few days' treatment has been reported to show a noticeable reduction in weight, foot-steps become lighter, your work seems easier and a lighter and more buoyant feeling takes possession of your whole being.

Every person who suffers from superfluous fat should give this treatment a trial.

Dump Across Mouth of Rush Creek Is Being Converted into Wagon Road by Burlington

DE SOTO, Wis., June 13.—(Special.)—The Burlington railway workmen began planking the old dump across the mouth of Rush creek Friday. It is the plan of the company to lay planks four inches and ten inches wide on each side of the rails over the old fill, and fill in between and outside of these planks with cinders, making a first class auto and wagon road, which can within a few hours' time be converted into a railroad by tearing up the planks. In case of emergency, such as the railroad had to face this spring, the old dump can be put in shape for train traffic within a very short time and a minimum expense.

GASOLINE COST CUT BY DEVICE OF LOCAL MAN

Invention of Joseph Hofweber Minimizes Necessary Fuel and Prevents Carbon

Joseph Hofweber, La Crosse, has perfected the "hydrcarbonator," a device which eliminates carbon from gas motors, reduces gasoline consumption and adds power with smoother running.

The device feeds water to the motor, which is first generated into steam, the object being to break the water into the finest possible form. It is then again condensed entering the cylinders, perfectly mixed with the gases, the same as air on a foggy day or night.

Motorists know how much better and more powerful a motor runs at night due to the added moisture of the night air. This device adds a much greater amount of water and does so automatically there being no manipulation or adjustment necessary.

Mr. Hofweber, has perfected and tested this device during the past two years and states the results have been more than surprising to himself and others, some of whom are now using the invention. The device is now being manufactured at Starch Bros., 100 South Front street, and will be fitted to several of the most prominent makes of cars. At present it is in use only on the Ford.

DECLARES FOR HUGHES

NEW YORK, June 13.—Frank A. Munsey, who with George W. Perkins has been among the strongest Roosevelt supporters, on Monday called upon Charles E. Hughes at the Hotel Astor. The New York Press, owned by Munsey, declared for Hughes and said: "When Roosevelt sent his message to the progressive convention, he denied definitely his and its opposition to the election of Hughes."

With regard to George W. Perkins, Munsey's Press said: "Second only to Colonel Roosevelt himself, the credit for bringing about political harmony in Chicago belongs, and rightly belongs, to George W. Perkins."

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

It all began the day Eleanor Belle turned to Robin, a casual onlooker at the tennis court, and said sweetly: "Won't you play in this set with me,

Mr. Dean? I'm afraid to ask. I'm such a horrid player; but—"

Robin had not allowed her to finish in his haste to accept. He flushed consciously as he answered: "Thank you, very much, Miss Belle. I'd be very much honored, indeed, to play with you." And as she gave him a sidelong look out of her wonderful eyes, which seemed to say, "You are a man after my own heart, and I have just discovered it," his own poor heart almost gave a jump right out of his mouth, and he added, impulsively, "I'd eat a peck of that sand, Miss Belle, if you'd ask me to, like that."

She laughed. "But I don't intend to make such a demand now, Mr. Dean," she said, with another look that thrilled him afresh.

And that is the way it began, for up to that minute Robin had regarded Eleanor Belle as an unapproachable planet of the upper heavens, with a group of satellites all her own, who far surpassed him in brilliancy and age. He belonged to a set known as "The Kids."

Craig Halsted and Mary Lane, on the other side of the net nodded understandingly to one another. "Nell's caught another fish," whispered Craig.

"Jusa a minnow!" laughed Mary. "Isn't she the limit? I wonder what she does it for!"

"She'd better be careful. One of the minnows might grow into a whale and eat her up," answered Craig lightly, as he sent the ball over the net.

But after all that wasn't the real beginning either. That happened years before, one day when Robin was 6 years old and Betty Wright was 2. That day a friendly collie dog had knocked Betty down and in sheer exuberance of spirits was kissing her all over her little face when Robin came along on roller skates and bravely gave the tormentor a whack with a stick and drove him away. The little golden-haired girl had smiled adorably and held out two chubby hands. "Me love you!" she said. And Robin had kissed her as impulsively as, fifteen years later, he had offered to devour part of the tennis court at Eleanor Belle's command.

Betty and Robin had grown up chums, fighting each other's battles, sharing each other's joys, triumphing in each other's victories.

Even now, Robin flushed with conscious pride as he thought of Betty. "Perhaps Miss Belle will let me walk home with her and we will pass Bet's home. Won't she be surprised, though, to see me chumming with such a queen?"

Robin and Eleanor Belle won the set.

"What a splendid player you are, Robin! You don't mind me calling you Robin, do you?" She flashed a splendid smile at him and held out her hand. "I want to congratulate you. You are the first man who has beaten Craig Halsted this year."

The "minnow" gasped with a conglomeration of feelings, but managed a reply of some sort. He did walk home with Eleanor, and they did pass "Bet's" house, but so complete was his infatuation that he didn't see his old chum waving at him from a side porch swing.

But before they had quite reached home, one of the charmer's satellites passed, a man six or seven years Robin's senior. "What are your hours, Nell?" he called. "You ought to hang out a sign!"

Robin turned a red hot. The reference to a kindergarten went home and he felt like fighting. Then his good sense came to his rescue and he paid no attention. That was the manly thing to do!

When he had left Eleanor at her door he went back to Betty's stepping on clouds instead of the pavement. This time he saw his chum on the swing.

"Hello, Bet!"

"Hello, Bob! Wonder you wouldn't speak as you pass by. What's up between you and Nellie Belle? You looked as thick as thieves going along a minute ago." The boy detected a note of amazement in her voice, but shrugged his shoulders indifferently as though what had happened was an everyday occurrence.

"Oh, we played tennis together and I thought I'd better take her home."

"She's older than you, Bob!"

"Not much! Besides, it doesn't make any difference. It's all the way you act."

Betty was silent.

"She's certainly a queen, isn't she, Bet? And didn't she look pretty in that pink sweater!"

He found a willing ally in Betty, to whom he took all his troubles. There was the time the candy store burned down! Many a box of delectable sweets came from Betty's kitchen intended for fair Eleanor. And many a bit of shopping she did for Rob upon a birthday or like occasion when a woman's taste was required. She managed his campaign to perfection and kept him posted as to the goings and comings of his rivals and planned opportunities for him to meet the object of his dreams.

"You're a brick, Bet! What on earth would I do without you?" declared Robin one day.

"Oh, you'll get along all right some day when things get settled and you and Eleanor are married."

"Married!" he cried. "Do you think she—oh, Bet, do you think she cares for me?"

"She must, or she wouldn't have let you do all you've done. You've been awfully good to her, Bob! Think of all the things you've sent her and the money you have spent on her. Besides, she must know that you care."

"Yes, I guess she does know it by this time. But really I've never actually told her that I loved her."

"Well, why don't you? You've known her a good while, and you are rich enough to support her and you always say age doesn't make any difference. Why don't you tell her that you love her? Faint heart—you know."

"I believe I will, Bet. This very night if none of those fools is hanging around. They think I'm a kid, but I'll show them. Craig Halsted has nearly driven me crazy with his guying. Say, Betty," in sudden panic, "how do you propose to a girl?"

She laughed. "I can make your candy and do your shopping and arrange your meetings, but I can't do your proposing. Every one seems to have his own way," demurely.

"How do you know?"

"Oh, I know!"

"Why, how many proposals have you had to talk so?" in the tone of a patronizing big brother.

Well—there's one, two, three, counting on her fingers, "four, five this summer. Not so bad!"

"Betty! I didn't dream you were such a flirt. When has all this been going on?"

"Going on?"

"I think it is scandalous!"

"So do I! But," with demurely lifted brows, "I can't help it if they love me."

"Betty Wright! This doesn't sound like you. My old chum! You—" anxious—"haven't accepted any of them, have you?"

"I'm not saying."

"But—why, Betty, what would I do if you got married?"

"Would it make any difference? I could still help you. Eleanor could come—"

"Darn Eleanor! It's you I'm worrying about. Betty, I don't want you to get married!"—their eyes met and held—"

"This anybody but me," he finished. "It's you I love, Betty—no one else. I've just found it out, but it's true. Look here, dear, you aren't really engaged, are you?"

"Not precisely," she laughed. Then added: "Eleanor is going to marry Craig after Christmas, but don't tell—it's a secret."

You never can tell. Some men are self-starters and others need a crank to get them going.

"Then Let There
Wave O'er Every

of The U. S. A."

Be an American! No matter how meager are your surroundings you are still an American. You live and have your being under the protection of "Old Glory." Reverence your country and your country's flag by displaying an American flag of some kind tomorrow.

Listen For The
Sunrise and Sunset
Gun.

We are going to pay homage to our country by raising and saluting the flag at sunrise, and lowering and saluting at sunset.

Come at Sunrise If You Can, or Anyway at Sunset and Give the Stars and Stripes a Rousing Cheer.

Flag will be raised from the Main street staff on the roof of the store.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD

Yesterday's Hero

Coveleskie, Indians, relieved Klepper in the ninth with two on and none down, and struck out Oldring, Schang and Stellbauer in succession.

The Cubs win over the Giants was a slaughter. They mauled two of John McGraw's mound fighters for eighteen well bunched swats.

Schulte and Mulligan copped swatting honors for the day with four hits apiece. Plack and Williams were right on their heels with three apiece.

Manager Rowland threw in the high speed and told the White Sox to go to it. They did. White Sox 3, Washington 0.

Benz twirled some ball for the Sox. He held the Griffith swatters to three hits.

A boner by Bescher of the Cardinals when he grasped a fly ball with his finger tips which would have gone foul, gave the Dodgers a run in the sixth.

It took the heart out of the bunch from the Mound City, and Brooklyn had it soft thereafter.

The Pirates spoiled a shut-out for Alexander of the Phillies, when Johnston doubled in the ninth and scored on Wagner's single.

Ruth, pinch hitting for Janvrin in the seventh, scored the Red Sox three runs by cleaning the bases with a homer. The Browns won out in the ninth when Austin's double scored Plank.

Cobb started a little campaign to crowd Tris Speaker for batting honors.

The Tiger star cut loose with a double and a homer against the New York Yanks and on top of that scored three runs.
